

How might we help staff stay continuously aligned across shifts, departments, and guest situations so they can carry out the right task, at the right time, with the right information, without manually chasing updates, people, or priorities?