

Hotels run on people, not systems

The existing hotel systems are outdated and not sufficient to keep up with the hotels operations. Staff are left to work around the systems and fill in the gaps where needed. Right now hotel operations rely heavily on memory, spreadsheets, post it notes.

The consequence is a team that is constantly misaligned, spending more time chasing information than delivering the experience guests are paying for.