

Staff, teams, and departments are constantly out of sync

Hotels run on multiple disconnected systems. PMS, booking platforms, housekeeping tools, communication apps, that were each built for a specific function and never designed to share information with each other.

A guest preference logged in one system never reaches the staff member who needs it. A task created in one department is invisible to another. A promise made on one shift disappears when the next one starts.

The systems are not broken. They just do not talk to each other. And nobody built the layer in between.
